THE SECOND DAY'S REVIEW.

The Triumphant March of Our Western Heroes—The Streets Strained with Flowers—Unparalleled Enthusiasm.

WASHINGTON, May 24. Before daylight this morning, the five companies of the city were out watering the streets for the splendid military display that Gen. Sherman's army has made. The air was chilly, but the sun rose warm and bright, and soon the line of march was packed with over thousands more than witnessed the parade yesterday. Maj. Gen. John A. Logan having received only yesterday from the War Department order assigning him to the command of the Army of the Tennessee, issued immediately an order requiring the command of the 15th corps to be given to Gen. W. B. Hazen, of the 2d division, who was assigned to the corps by Secretary Stanton. Brig. Gen. Oliver succeeded Gen. Hazen in command of the division. The promotion was eminently deserved, and the division is highly gratified thereby.

MOVEMENT OF THE CORPS.
At 9 o'clock precisely, Gen. Sherman headed the column and moved from the Capitol down Pennsylvania Avenue, amid the din of huzzas and congratulations, and a hailstorm of bouquets and wreaths. The avenue was so densely packed with spectators that it was almost impossible to move along the street. The 9th Illinois mounted infantry preceded the General, and cleared the street. Notwithstanding the presence of the guard, the people, bearing their floral gifts, crowded toward the General and would not be denied the privilege of presenting them. The column passed from the avenue to Fifth street, and passing the Treasury building moved past the stands erected in front of the White House for the occupation of the President, Generals, and their invited friends.

THE PRESIDENT'S STAND.
Nearing this point a deafening cheer from the multitude, commenced on the extreme line of seats erected opposite the President's stand, and from that packed along the sidewalks, announced the approach of Gen. Sherman. His appearance was the signal for a welcoming shout, that did not abate until he had dismounted and taken his position on the stand. As he advanced from the street towards the platform hundreds hailed him with bouquets and wreaths, and congratulatory shouts. The General passed hurriedly along declining every opportunity for a hand shake, and ascending the stand, where his remarkably healthy and neat appearance was welcomed again with thundering huzzas.

AN INCIDENT.
A very significant little incident occurred here which having attracted general attention among the thousands coming opposite the stand, and having been greeted with an endless variety of comments, I cannot refrain from mentioning. The animosity existing between Gen. Sherman and Secretary Stanton on account of the latter's denunciation of Gen. Sherman's terms of agreement conditionally made with Gen. Johnston is doubtless well known. Occupying the stand on General Sherman's arrival were Gen. Grant, Meade, Meigs, Hancock, President Johnson, Secretary of the Treasury McCulloch, Post Master Dennison, Attorney General Speed, Secretary Stanton, Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Meade and a large number of other prominent ladies. Most of the gentlemen met Gen. Sherman as he entered the party, and grasped his hand. Secretary Stanton was seated between Grant and the President. Gen. Sherman approached the President, extending his hand, when Secretary Stanton rose and extended his. Gen. Sherman turned on his heel and seated himself at the further end of the platform, without even bowing recognition. The slight was no sooner given than it was noticed by the multitude, who in the enthusiasm of the moment loudly applauded the act, and even laughed at the Secretary's discomfiture.

GENERAL HOWARD.
Accompanying Gen. Sherman, but a little retired, rode Major General O. O. Howard, present Chief of the Freedmen's Bureau, and late Commander of the Army of Tennessee. He was loudly cheered, and following Gen. Thomas, appeared on the stand immediately after the unpleasant meeting referred to, and took his seat amid a din of cheers.

THE GALLANT JOHN A. LOGAN.
In a few moments came a platoon of mounted guards. These splendidly mounted on a fleet-footed Milled mare, gaily caparisoned and bedecked with a wreath of flowers, came the new and popular commander of the Army of Tennessee, Major General Logan. Close on his heels followed his personal and body staff, led by his Chief Brevet Brig. Gen. Strong. A most enthusiastic cheer rent the air on the guards approach, and, as with Gen. Howard and Thomas, it was prolonged until the General made his appearance and took a seat among the other officers on the platform.

THE 15TH CORPS.
The 15th corps held the advance of the army of the Tennessee. A few minutes after 9 o'clock the head of the column appeared, led by Major Gen. W. B. Hazen, commanding the corps. The order of the divisions were, 1st division, Major C. R. Woodson, Ohio; 2d, B. G. Oliver, of Iowa; 3d, Major Gen. Conise, of Allentown fame.

APPEARANCE OF THE ARMY.
Notwithstanding the exhausting march of these armies from North Carolina, and the want of requisite time to recuperate, and the lack of clothing and equipments, the appearance of the men compared very favorably with that of the Potomac army, reviewed yesterday, and it is conceded by everyone that the marching to-day exceeded, in point of execution, that of yesterday.

As the regiments moved up to the stand, displaying their ragged, tattered banners, an involuntary burst of applause, joined in by men, women and children, broke from the assembled masses, and even drowned the music of the band. Handkerchiefs, scarfs, bouquets, wreaths, flags, hats and every article calculated to all to attract attention, waved from the windows, balconies, house tops, tree tops, fences and platforms along the line of march. Such a wealth and profusion of roses never before erupted the feet of an army. The street in front of the court house was strewn at times with bouquets, thrown at some favorite by the admiring crowds, and the bayonets and gun-bushels of the troops were all in bloom with the floral tributes of the people. Any comparison would be invidious when so many well disciplined and veteran soldiers vie with each other for the palm.

THE 17TH CORPS.
But a few moments elapsed after the passage of the 15th corps, until the 17th corps, led by Maj. Gen. F. P. Blair, approached the stand. So eager were the spectators to look upon the faces of the great men who have won in this struggle imperishable honors, and engraven their names indelibly by their great deeds, in the hearts of the people, that even during the few moments of interval between the passage of the 15th and approach of the 17th corps, they forced the guards and crowded in, shouting by hundreds around the main stand. Every General was called for, and compelled to offer his acknowledgments. The most popular were Grant, Sherman, Howard, Slocum and Logan.

PRESENT TO GEN. BLAIR.
Gen. Blair was approached in the line of march by a committee of Missourians, who presented him with four colors and a wreath, and finally loaded down his officers and men with their fragrant offerings. For the sake of brevity, let me say that unbounded enthusiasm marked the progress of the column at every point, and less partiality in the bestowal of applause was evinced by the masses than on any other great public occasion within my recollection.

ORDER OF DIVISIONS.
The order of divisions of the 17th corps was: 3d division, Maj. Gen. Leggett; 1st division, Maj. Gen. Giles Smith; 1st division, Maj. Gen. Force.

ARTILLERY.
The artillery of the army made a splendid appearance. Among those of the Army of the Tennessee, were the battery of the famous young DeGrass, of Vicksburg notoriety. Several ladies accompanied the column, riding in review with their husbands at the head of the troops and being welcomed at every point with enthusiasm.

THE REAR.
At just twelve o'clock the rear of the Army of Tennessee passed the President's stand, and again the eager thousands choked the street in front. Loud calls were made for the General and then for the President and Cabinet. All responded by rising and bowing thanks for the honor.

THE ARMY OF GEORGIA.
With the same difficulty the street was cleared and the hands announced soon after the approach of the Army of Georgia. Preceded by a strong mounted guard came Maj. Gen. Slocum, commanding the army. The stands and streets were packed with his old admirers and friends, and long before his person could be distinguished the air was trembling with the welcoming shout. Next came in a plain manner, the chivalric gentleman of the genuine caste, the trusty, popular soldier, Maj. Gen. Morgan, commanding the 20th corps. A gentleman bearing a wreath of roses was seen to approach the General from the sidewalk, and at once the throats of the multitude were straining to shout approval of the testimonial. The divisions passed in the following order: First, Brevet Major General A. S. Williams; 2d, Brevet Major General J. W. O'Leary; 3d, Brevet Major General Ward, of Ky. All these were received with the same generous enthusiasm that characterized the reception of the other gentlemen, the people abating not a tithe of their zeal though five long hours of continued strain and excitement had worn upon them.

THE 14TH CORPS.
Following the 20th corps, after an interval of ten minutes, during which the people took occasion to call again on honored notables that occupied the stand, came the 14th corps, led by the gallant soldier Maj. Gen. Jeff. C. Davis. A reception like that given the others greeted him. His division moved in the following order: 1st brigade, Maj. Gen. Bledsoe; 2d brigade, Maj. Gen. Morgan; 3d, Maj. Gen. Westcott. That which attracted most attention during the review of the Army of Georgia, which was the occasion of considerable mirth, was the passing in review of the pack mules, captured cats, dogs, donkeys, chickens, &c. These were led or carried by negroes, and presented just the appearance that they do on the march. The review closed at 3:30 p. m., making six and a half hours consumed in passing a given point.

THE VICTORIES.
The following are names of the victories which appeared on the banners over the President's stand: Chattanooga, Vicksburg, Jonesboro, Kennesaw, Shiloh, Chickamauga, Savannah, Nashville, Atlanta, Fort Donelson, Resaca, Stone River, Bartlesville, Pea Ridge, Mill Springs, Charleston and Franklin.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—We had another bright day for the review. Fresh arrivals this morning augmented the already large number of strangers who had visited Washington to witness the grand military parade. The tastefully decorated stands near the Executive Mansion were again occupied by President Johnson, members of the Cabinet, and Lieut. Gen. Grant, together with distinguished army and navy officers, Chiefs of Executive Bureaus, the diplomatic corps, families and others. The vicinity of the reviewing point was densely crowded over a larger area than yesterday, this locality being the most attractive. The Army of the Tennessee moved from the Capitol at 9 a. m., proceeding towards the Executive Mansion.

GEN. SHERMAN.
At the head of the column rode Maj. Gen. Sherman, who was vociferously cheered all along the line. The greeting of the hero was in the highest degree enthusiastic. He had been presented with two large wreaths of flowers, one of which had been hung around his horse's neck, and the other hung upon his own shoulders. Maj. Gen. Sherman was accompanied by Maj. Gen. Howard.

GEN. LOGAN.
Next followed Maj. Gen. Logan and staff escort. He yesterday assumed command of this army. Maj. Gen. Logan appeared at the head of the command. This corps is comprised of troops from Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin.

THE SEVENTEENTH CORPS.
The 17th army corps was preceded by its command, Maj. Gen. Blair, with his staff, followed by the headquarters escort. The troops of this corps are from Ohio, Illinois, New York, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota and Michigan.

THE ARMY OF GEORGIA.
The next in review was the Army of Georgia, Maj. Gen. Slocum, commanding. The 20th corps was commanded by Maj. Gen. Morgan, and composed of volunteers from Connecticut, Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Ohio, Delaware, Indiana and Michigan.

THE FOURTEENTH CORPS.
This was succeeded by the 14th army corps, Brevet Maj. Gen. J. C. Davis, commanding. It was composed of volunteers from Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Minnesota, and Kentucky. The respective commanders of the armies, divisions and brigades bore upon their persons profusions of flowers, and as they passed along the line cheers were given and flags waved.

The armies represented all branches and divisions of the service—cavalry, artillery and infantry, with sufficient variety in trimmings and appointments to relieve the general sameness of uniform, and several divisions of volunteers contributed to produce the effect. Sections of pontoon bridges and ambulances, stretchers and even heavy wagons were featured in the procession. There was also a fair representation of the epaule and ax department, the implements being carried on the shoulders of both white and black soldiers.

FUNNY INCIDENTS.
Much amusement was occasioned by a display of pack-horses and mules. They were all heavily loaded with commissary supplies, including chickens; a cow, a dog and a goat were comfortably fastened to three of the saddles. These were the pets of soldiers. Two black soldiers of the largest size riding very small mules, their feet nearly touching the ground, were regarded as a comical scene in connection with this part of the display, and occasioned general laughter.

THE FLAGS.
An interesting feature of the parade was the exhibition of flags and banners of various patterns, some of them were entirely new, others were carried torn by bullets and reduced to shreds, while others were entire, although the material was faded by exposure to the weather, or blackened by the smoke of battle. Several staffs were carried, from which the flags had been shot away. All the spear heads were ornamented with flowers.

APPEARANCE OF THE TROOPS.
It was remarked as in contrast to the Army of the Potomac, that the troops comprising the armies of Georgia and Tennessee, were the wide brimmed hats, regulation pattern. Their appearance in all respects was equal to that of the Army of the Potomac, notwithstanding they had done more marching service. Their movements were much admired and applauded. The commander of each army and corps and division, attended by one staff officer, dismounted after passing the General in Chief, and joined him until his army, corps or division had passed the reviewing stand, when he rejoined his command.

THE MUSIC.
The brigade bands or consolidated field music turned out and played as their brigades passed. One band to each division performed during the march from the Capitol to the Treasury Building. After the troops passed the reviewing officers they were marched to their respective quarters.

SECRETARY SEWARD.
Secretary Seward, notwithstanding his severe physical affliction, took a deep interest in the review. Gen. Augur made him comfortable and furnished him with a good position at the headquarters of the government of Washington, that he might witness the grand display.

PASSING TIME.
The armies of Tennessee and Georgia occupied six hours in passing, the same length of time required yesterday for the review of the Army of the Potomac.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The following are a few of the incidents of the day: Previous to the march, a number of young ladies made through the crowd and soldiers at Capitol Hill, and bestowed upon some of the officers bouquets, wreaths and garlands.

It has already been stated that Gen. Sherman led the advance to-day, accompanied by Gen. Howard, with bouquets in their hands and their horses decorated with flowers. Upon reaching the western part of the city a veteran reserve officer approached Gen. Sherman with another bouquet, but the horse of the latter became restive and he motioned the soldier back. "Give it to Howard," shouted the multitude, but he too having but one hand could only attend to his prancing horse. So the veteran returned to his seat with his offering amid the cheers of all.

Riding to the Western entrance of the Executive Mansion, Gen. Sherman dismounted, and with Gen. Howard and staff joined the group on the stand. Gen. Logan, John W. Geary and Frank Blair, especially received the acclamations of the multitude. As the head of Major Gen. F. P. Blair's corps marched by Fourteenth street in marching column, some hundred and fifty gentlemen, mostly from Missouri, presented to the General a splendid banner, and to each of the officers of his staff a beautiful bouquet.

Kirby Smith's Rebel Army.
A Washington correspondent has had a conversation with a gentleman just from Texas, who claims to be thoroughly informed concerning Smith's army. He says that Kirby Smith's forces are composed of shrewd and inhuman elements, belonging to Price, Dick Taylor's and Magruder's commands. The army is formidable in numbers, but not in spirit. At last date there were inscribed on the army rolls 105,000 names, which, deducting for sick and absent, brings the actual number of Kirby's soldiers to something like 55,000 men of whom 10,000 should be deducted for tentatives, and other non-fighting men. Of the 45,000, 45,000 only, belong to infantry. The remainder enlisted as cavalry, or mounted infantry, which are represented in a perfect state of discipline and in a perfect state of discipline.

The army is represented to be thoroughly supplied with ammunition and provisions. The gentleman claims that he had a conversation with Kirby Smith relative to the war prospects. The latter said that he had tried seven times to send reinforcements to Johnston, but failed on account of the presence of guerrillas in the river between Natchez and New Orleans. He said, having thus failed, he had gathered all the ammunition he needed, and made all preparations for defensive warfare. He pointed out the advantages Texas possessed in having no rivers and springs to supply an invading army. He thought he could hold out here for several years, until the independence of the Confederacy was recognized. Since of the rebel officers told this gentleman that Kirby Smith was sensible of the folly of prosecuting the struggle, and was only talking this way to receive the best terms for himself and men. Some represented him as being unprincipled and dishonest, ready to sacrifice his army and cause for his personal interests, and that he had already made much money by selling cotton, monopolizing importation. On the other hand, his partisans said that he was upright and honest, and looked only to the best means of achieving success for the Confederate cause.

A House for Jefferson Davis in Liverpool.
To the Editor of the Savannah Herald.
—Now that everything regarding the movements of Jeff. Davis has a peculiar interest, I have thought it well to give to the public, through the columns of your valuable paper, a fact which came to my personal knowledge hearing upon the subject.

When I was in Liverpool, England, now about a year ago, there had just been completed a splendid brick mansion in one of the most fashionable squares of the city, which was generally known and talked of as having been erected from the proceeds of the Confederate loan, and as being intended for the future residence of Jefferson Davis, in the event of circumstances forcing him to leave the country.

During my stay in Liverpool, the windows of the house remained painted white, which, according to the custom in that city, indicated that the house had been engaged and was waiting for its occupant—a circumstance which gave plausibility to the town talk of its being the sometime residence of the fugitive President of the Southern Confederacy.

The Third Series of Seven-Thirties.

The great success of the 7-30 Loan must always be looked upon as one of the most powerful evidences of the strength of the United States Government, and of its strong hold upon the confidence and affection of the people. On Saturday, May 13th, the subscriptions were over thirty million dollars, and for the week ending on that day, over ninety-eight million dollars, and in the three months that the Loan has been in charge of Mr. Jay Cooke, over five hundred million dollars. These large receipts will enable the Treasury to pay off our armies as they are disbanded, and to rapidly discharge the various obligations that have been incurred during the war. History will show that a great war-debt to individuals has never before been so promptly paid; and we think all will agree that Secretary McCulloch deserves great credit for the ability he has manifested, not only in securing the means, but for the financial skill he has displayed in so directing these vast receipts and disbursements as not for a moment to disturb the equilibrium of commerce, embarrass individuals, or in any way tighten the money market. It is doubtless true that the Secretary of the Treasury might have negotiated the remainder of his loans at six per cent. interest of 7-30, but so much valuable time would necessarily have been lost in popularizing a new loan that the great object of the Government, viz., an immediate supply of money sufficient to pay all the debts incident to the war, would have been defeated; and besides, the difference of interest would not have been equal to three days' expenses. The policy may have looked "penny wise," but the best financial authorities, as well as common sense, pronounced it "pound foolish." As it is—and will be, no soldier will go home without his greenbacks, and the floating debt in the shape of vouchers, requisitions, &c., will be wiped out as rapidly as the proper officers can audit and adjust the accounts.

The Second Series of the 7-30 Loan was exhausted on Saturday, May 13th. On Monday, the Secretary of the Treasury authorized Jay Cooke, the general Subscription Agent for United States Securities, to receive subscriptions for $230,000,000 of a Third Series, which is all that is authorized by Congress, and is, without doubt, the last loan at this high rate of interest that will be offered by the Government.

There is no charge in the terms or conditions of this Third Series, except that the Government reserves the right of paying interest at six per cent. in gold instead of seven and three-tenths in currency—a right which would pre-suppose a return to specie payments, and make six per cent. in gold even better than the higher rate in currency—a consummation most devoutly to be wished.

The privilege of converting the notes into 5-20 per cent. gold bonds at the end of three years, or receiving payment at maturity, at the holder's option, is retained.

The first day of the Third Series opened with a subscription within a fraction of five millions, and the month of June will certainly see the last of the 7-30's out of market. How early in June we cannot predict, but parties who wish to make sure of a portion would do well to begin now. Full particulars may be found in our advertising columns.

Mr. Lincoln's Religious Character.
In his address at the burial of Mr. Lincoln at Springfield, Bishop Simpson spoke as follows with reference to the late President's religious convictions:

Abraham Lincoln was a good man. He was known as an honest, temperate, forgiving man; a just man, a man of noble heart in every way. As to his religious convictions, I cannot speak definitely, because I was not privileged to know much of his private sentiments. My acquaintance with him did not give me the opportunity to hear him speak on those topics. This I know, however. He read the Bible frequently—loved it for its great truths and profound teachings, and he tried to be guided by its precepts. He believed in Christ the saviour of sinners, and I think, he was sincerely trying to bring his life into harmony with the great principles of revealed religion. Certainly if there ever was a man who illustrated some of the principles of pure religion, that man was our departed President. Look over all his speeches, listen to his utterances, he never spoke unkindly of any man. Even the rebels received no words of anger from him, and the last days of his life illustrated in a remarkable manner, his forgiving disposition. A dispatch was received that afternoon that Thompson and Tucker were trying to escape through Maine, and it was proposed to arrest them. Mr. Lincoln, however, preferred to let them quietly escape. He was seeking to save the very men who had been plotting his destruction, and this morning we read a proclamation offering $25,000 for the arrest of these men, as aiders and abettors of his assassination. So that in his experience of the principles of pure religion, that man was our departed President. Look over all his speeches, listen to his utterances, he never spoke unkindly of any man. Even the rebels received no words of anger from him, and the last days of his life illustrated in a remarkable manner, his forgiving disposition. SEWING-MACHINES.—Of the many inventions and improvements of sewing-machines, none have so satisfactorily stood the test of time and service as Grover & Baker's. They have taken the highest premiums at the recent State Fairs of fifteen States; they have, moreover, received the warmest encomiums from all persons who have ever used the machine, and those who have had opportunities to compare the different styles of machines, generally prefer Grover & Baker's to any other. They do the work neatly and well, do not get out of order, and are readily adapted to any kind of sewing. We would advise our lady readers, who are in want of a sewing-machine, to call at Grover and Baker's. —Brooklyn Standard.

THE CULTIVATOR OF CORN.—The large amount of corn to be planted this season, renders it necessary for the producer to have some improved implement for its cultivation. To meet this demand, I am now building "The Badger State" gig corn planter.

After six months experimenting with different models, we have one which we are willing should be put to the test, and that it should stand or fall on its own merits. A lengthy description does not seem to be necessary. We will simply say that we are confident it will perform all that any cultivator will, and all that any farmer will require of it. It has six shovels, or four, as desired. The shovels are arranged so to cultivate wide or narrow, shallow or deep; and they all have a very easy side motion. To say that they are made under the supervision of G. F. Lane, is a sufficient guarantee that they will be well made. In fact, they will be warranted in every respect.

The Badger State gig cultivator will be sold this season at $50 at the shop.

ALL hail creation far and near,

Of a world's store you now shall hear:

Let pealing drums and cannon's roar

Proclaim the news from shore to shore.

Great bargains sure are on the wing,

Baro wonders that we now will bring.

Our Store is situated on Main Street;

We make up our clothing very neat.

Frock and Sack Coat to suit you all,

And all we ask is—give us a call.

Patric and Vest, both of course in line,

And all other goods suitable in kind.

White Over and Under Shirts to suit every one,

The rich and the poor, the old and the young.

Collars and Neckties of every stamp,

Hosiery and Gloves come next in rank.

A great many goods too numerous to mention,

To which we invite your special attention.

Let all repair with willing feet,

To Myer's Block—Main Street.

And next undoubtedly, all should go
